

57. Anuska, here assertion (A) is that India must need inclusive growth. So, first we will understand the meaning of inclusive growth. Inclusive growth means that all sectors of the economy are equally prioritized to grow. Investments are made in each sector inspite of focussing on an specific sector.

Now, for this assertion, reason (R) should be such that it must explain why India must need inclusive growth. But here reason is completely opposite which says that in Indian economy, external sector is more significant. Then for this reason, external sector should be preferred more then it will not called inclusive growth but it will be called exclusive growth. So, Reason (R) is not the correct. In the case of India, it must be inclusive growth because its all sectors are in poor condition.
